

BOYS HAVE TABACCO HEART

Cigarette Smokers of Salt Lake Fail to Pass Examination for Enlistment in the United States Navy—Otherwise They Have Fine Physique.

UTAH boys who are applying for admission into Uncle Sam's navy are being rejected on account of their "tobacco heart." In other words, cigarettes form the bar that holds them out. They have smoked until their hearts have become affected, and no one without a perfectly sound heart can expect to become a member of the United States navy.

Throat trouble, which is also said to be caused partially by smoking, is barring many of the boys who have applied at the local recruiting station since its establishment last Monday. The physical examination which the applicants have to undergo is very rigid, and, considering the progress being made, the naval officers will not take away many of Salt Lake's young men.

Since the recruiting station was opened, there have been about fifty applications from lads, most of whom are between the ages of 15 and 17. Of these only three boys have successfully passed the examination. They are Herbert Pratt, Cleveland Sidney, 15 years old, and Harry Oliver, 20 years old. The latter two were accepted yesterday, but they have yet to secure consent papers from their parents, as they are under age. Young Pratt, who passed the day before, was sworn yesterday. The boys selected will be sent to San Francisco Saturday.

Affected by Tobacco.

An examination yesterday of the application and examination blanks at the recruiting station showed that of the boys rejected, the majority were rejected on account of tobacco heart and diseased tonsils. The prevalence of these troubles was very noticeable, only a very few having been refused on account of poor physique and defective vision.

The tobacco heart, as explained by the officer in charge, is the result of smoking cigarettes and the use of tobacco in all forms too constantly in early youth. The continual smoking, especially of cigarettes, causes the heart to weaken and finally brings about palpitation. The danger from palpitation of the heart is well known and it is evident why the navy will not accept boys affected with that disease, or any trouble of the heart.

Disease of the tonsils, while not so dangerous, is just as important to the eyes of naval surgeons as the tobacco heart. An applicant having anything wrong with his tonsils is rejected, because, as the seamen explain, his tonsils would swell to twice their normal size when the applicant went aboard ship, as a result of coming in contact with salt water air, and he would be unfit for work. Much of the throat trouble, it is said, is the result of smoking, and a large per cent of the applicants here have been rejected on that score.

The examining officers speak highly of the physique of the average Salt Lake boy, and his vision is said to be exceptionally good, and were it not for the ill effects of their smoking many might enlist who have been turned down.

Salt Laker's Good Vision.

"We have noticed particularly the good vision possessed by the boys here," said one of the officers. "In the majority of places we find so many people are near-sighted, and that, of course, bars them from the navy."

The explanation of the officers for the case of the boys is that they are residents of the large eastern metropolises is novel. They say that persons living for years in those close, crowded towns, where their vision is limited by the tall buildings to the distance across the streets, their eyes soon become near-sighted, the lenses of their eyes becoming adjusted to the visual distance. The boys, however, are accustomed to the open country, and their eyes are not so near-sighted. The result of this is that the boys' eyes are not so near-sighted as the eyes of the boys who have been brought up in the cities.
